Brother
Knights,

It is indeed a privilege to serve as the Grand Knight for our OLP council. No One wants to go it alone, so I am very pleased and blessed to have Stephen Gauntner step up as our new Deputy Grand Knight.

For our council to be a success going forward, each of us should heed the wisdom to not go it alone. It takes many hands and talents within this council to be of service to this parish. A first step is for each of to encourage and tap others in the shoulder to step up and take an active role within our council.

Like me, many of you take the easy way out and resort to SignUpGenius. We do this rather than making a personal call asking for help with a project we are heading or involved. Our new members are looking for opportunities to volunteer, and when they do, they feel a part of something bigger. They often don't want to go it alone and many don't feel a part of the parish. For some, they feel like they just don't know anyone.

Your call, your personal touch, and invitation may be the one thing that gets them involved, keeps them active in our membership, and makes our parish a home for them and their families. Can we count on each other to reach out and activate our membership to serve?

Speaking of our council activities, this month we have a number of projects that require your help, including the Blood Drive, the Clothing Drive and our annual trip to McArthur, Ohio. Also, our Donut Sundays for this fall continue. You can find details in this newsletter of these projects and what you can do to participate in them..

God Bless,

Ed Price, Grand Knight

St.
Remigius
Archbishop
437-533 AD
October 1

Remigius was born of noble and pious parents. At the age of twenty-two, in spite of the canons and of his own reluctance, he was acclaimed Archbishop of Rheims. He was unusually tall, his face impressed with blended majesty and serenity, his bearing gentle, humble, and retiring. He was learned and eloquent, and had the gift of miracles. His pity and charity were boundless, and in toil he knew no weariness. His body was the outward expression of a noble and holy soul, breathing the spirit of meekness and compunction.

For so choice a workman God had fitting work. The South of France was in the hands of Arians, and the pagan Franks were wresting the North from the Romans. St. Remigius confronted Clovis, their king, and converted and baptized him at Christmas, in 496. With him he gained the whole Frank nation. He threw down the idol altars, built churches, and appointed bishops. He withstood and silenced the Arians, and converted so many that he left France a Catholic kingdom, its king the oldest and at the time the only crowned son of the Church.

He died in 533, after an episcopate of seventy-four years, the longest on record.

"Being a Christian is not a secondary, questionable, changeable thing; it is not a subjective ideology. It is a truth that happily transfigures and vivifies. The truth will make you free."
